

No pictures left to mark my name
Just fading steps that speak of shame
The world moved on, I stayed behind
A shadow lost, a silent mind

Brother's a flame, and sister's a spark
But I was the one left out in the dark
Love never spoke, and warmth felt cold
But truth is rising, fierce and bold

Invisible — but not for long
I'll break the silence, right the wrong
Never knew love, but I'll find my way
With every note, I've something to say
Tearing down walls, I'm stepping through
Becoming the fire I never knew

Their voices told me I don't belong
But I turned that pain into my song
Still holding tight to dreams that burn
With every fall, I rise and learn

Brother's a flame, and sister's a spark
Love never spoke, and warmth felt cold
But now my story will be told

Invisible — but not for long
I'll break the silence, right the wrong
Never knew love, but I'll find my way
With every note, I've something to say
Tearing down walls, I'm stepping through

Becoming the fire I never knew

I'm building a life with hands once torn

From every crack, a light is born

No more chains to drag me low

I've found my voice — it's time to grow

Invisible — but not today

I've found my strength, I've found my way

Never knew love, but I feel it now

I stand up tall, I make this vow

To shine so bright they'll see my flame

No longer hiding from my name

Invisible... but not anymore

I'm walking through a brand-new door

Never knew love, but I found my way

And now the world will hear me play
