

A whisper travels through the night hearts are longing for the light Dreaming of a brand new dawn where fear and war are finally gone A world where no one has to fight where peace alone defines what's right

The world is burning, flames arise but people pray for quiet skies They want to work, to laugh, to sing to watch their children blossoming To share a meal, to raise a glass and let the simple moments last

We want to live, we want to love
a peaceful world we're dreaming of
No more walls and no more wars
just bridges reaching every shore

Voices rising, hearts as one
the dream of peace will carry on Together strong, we'll light the way
a brighter world begins today

But rulers chase their boundless schemes obsessed with power, darkened dreams They spread their poison, hate, and lies to blind the truth in people's eyes They steal the lands that aren't their own for hollow crowns and empty thrones

We want to live, we want to love

a peaceful world we're dreaming of
No more walls and no more wars
just bridges reaching every shore

Voices rising, hearts as one
the dream of peace will carry on
Together strong, we'll light the way
a brighter world begins today

And faith too often sparks the flame each claiming they're the only name But true belief should light the way not tear the human heart astray For in the prayers of every creed lies the same desire, love and peace

We want to live, we want to love
a peaceful world we're dreaming of
No more walls and no more wars
just bridges reaching every shore

Voices rising, hearts as one
the dream of peace will carry on
Together strong, we'll light the way
a brighter world begins today

The common hearts, they understand no neighbor longs to steal your land We dream of trade, of friendship true a summer song for me and you A glass of wine beneath the sky
a melody that will not die

But tyrants move us like a game and send us off in war's cruel name They sacrifice the many lives for selfish dreams that can't survive

And faith is twisted, turned to hate but love is what the heavens state No God would ever call for war no soul should suffer anymore

We want to live, we want to love
a peaceful world we're dreaming of
No more walls and no more wars
just bridges reaching every shore

Voices rising, hearts as one
the dream of peace will carry on
Together strong, we'll light the way
a brighter world begins today

At times it feels the world's insane so full of loss, so full of pain But deep inside the dream's not gone the song of peace still carries on